Aurora is a Graphic Design graduate from the Royal Academy of Art in The Hague. She is a socially engaged and very conceptual designer, whose poetic and engaging work is committed to making positive change. Being a quick and curious learner, she works with a range of different mediums, including 3D, animation, coding, games, type design and printed matter, among others. Because she has a very solid academic background, research always informs her designs. She is interested in social and environmental issues, architecture and new technologies, all of which and more can be seen in her work.

During her time at digital design agency Verve, she's worked on digital branding projects such as Netwerk Filmeducatie, Ancienne Belgique, Stroom Den Haag, Lize Spit and Curieus. She enjoyed being part of a team, collaborating with and learning from copywriters, UX designers, motion designers and developers.

Aurora is a Spaniard, born in Zürich, who has lived in Spain, the U.S.A., Belgium, Czech Republic and the Netherlands. She has successfully studied in five different education systems, each with their own set of values, academic requirements and behaviour codes. Thanks to this multicultural awareness she is a great communicator, highly empathetic and works well in teams, always bringing a fresh new perspective.

Professionally, she wants to continue to expand her knowledge of 3D, motion design and interactive media, finding new ways to expand her practice and apply it to the design of systems and identities.
